The province of Cienfuegos is situated in the south-central part of the Island of Cuba, has an ex-territorial tension of 4,178 km² and represents 4% of the total surface of the country. It is bordered to the west by the province of Matanzas, to the north with the province of Villa Clara, to the east by Sancti Spiritus and to the south by the Caribbean Sea. Its population is 407,189 inhabitants and the population density is of 97 inhabitants per km².

It has important tourist attractions, including its Historical Center, declared Cultural Heritage of Humanity on July 15, 2005. Its bay is considered one of the most beautiful in the country due to its calm waters, making it ideal for nautical activities. Complement this Tourist attractions the benefits of Nature, and stand out in the Green environment El Nicho, with its system of waterfalls and reservoirs, the Botanical Garden, the hacienda La Vega, the lagoon of Guanaroca, to which are added other paths of observation of genuine natural wonders. Enjoy then our Pearl of the South or, simply, of the beautiful City of the Sea.
The 19th century, with its illustrated airs of modernity and classicism, was born the colony “Fernandina de Jagua”, on April 22, 1819. This town is characterized by being the only one in Cuba that, under the Spanish crown, came into the world with parents coming from other countries, mostly French. Fernandina de Jagua Colony, with an initial population of 46, grew up in the same year of its founding with the arrival of men and women from North America. Spaniards and Cubans also joined the economic and social life of the colony, which, by its prosperity, reached in 1829 the title of Villa de Cienfuegos, in honor of Jose Cienfuegos, General Captain of the Island at the time of its foundation. It acquired the title of city in 1880, due to the accelerated economic development reached in that stage. This city has significant architectural values, urban and environmental, in eternal dialogue with the sea. Special mention should be made of its Jagua Bay, an ideal place for practicing nautical sports, which makes it exceptional in the field of Cuban and Ibero-American urbanism of the 19th century. Therefore, its national and international recognition as “La Perla del Sur” and “La Linda Ciudad del Mar”, it is based on its incomparable hospitality and the friendly treatment of its people, which makes your staying in this region a unique and unrepeatable experience of life.

The city is characterized by the classicism of its architecture, either in its neoclassical phase of the second half of the nineteenth century, or eclectic, until the first half of the twentieth century. It has valuable buildings, and the most important is its good state of conservation of the urban complex, in which symmetry, proportionality and the use of decorative elements of the classic formal code are appreciated. Domes, pediments, watchtowers and adornments like the pairs of lions at the José Martí square, complement an architectural work distinguished by its sobriety, elegance and constructive good taste.
CIENFUEGUERO
(THE ONE WHO LIVES IN CIENFUEGOS PROVINCE)

People are proud and charismatic, just like their city. From birth they are accustomed to the uniqueness of the environment where, for some reasons, they saw the light. Cienfuegos was the only colonial military force in the center of the country. It was the only Cuban village founded by French settlers. It has the only arch called “the workers”, which aims to bring its design to the majestic Triumphal Arch of Paris. The island’s longest Prado Promenade (1.6 km long) is also dominated by its surroundings, and one of the most prominent ports of Cuban landmarks appears in the region. And so, fueled his ego with the cultural values that surround him, Cientueguero is also enlarged to remember that his province witnessed the machete of Henry and Reeve, the value of the brothers Fernandez Cavada and José González Guerra, not to mention the prominent Battle of Bad Weather. But not by refined lack the black imprint that gave color and life to the folklore of the land. Orihas, herbs, drums and amulets enrich and nourish the identity of the one born in Cienfuegos. Benny Moré, also unrepeatable, sums up like no one that mestizo feeling that has turned Lajas and Palmira into mothers

Nutrients of African territorial.

Although natural in our Cuba, the Cienfuegos is hospitable, smiling, pleasant and talkative to exhaustion. A simple horse drawn used as an urban transport can be seen as a background for the “tell me your life”, and at the end of the rhythmic trot from Prado to Junco Sur, or by the boardwalk, you have a friend who is a doctor, a bricklayer, Or simply someone who listens to him and who will always assume as an acquaintance, although over time does not remember exactly where he found it. If the Cossackers are ostentatious, you wonder? Yes, they are, but always based on this trait in what they are capable of doing, of delivering, in the commitment they place in their works, and to which they always grant the extra, with true dedication. Immersed in a rare amalgam of pediments, viewpoints, domes, creeds, various toponimias and paired lions, Cienfuegos lives daily in front of the sea. That is why he levels his blog to the beat of time and neither loses his course nor moves away from the “distant white bride” that illuminates his nights, to dawn, with greater admiration each day, for the colors of his land in the beautiful fan of the country.
Today, those who live here and who are visiting the city, feel the great satisfaction of appreciating a renewed city, where efforts for their preservation are multiplied daily. A recognition is not a fortuitous act of complacency, but a genuine expression of their values, recognized by UNESCO when the 15 of July of 2005 granted the category of Cultural Patrimony of the Humanity to the Historical Urban Center of Cienfuegos. Declared as the first Latin American Historical Center of the nineteenth century, whose exceptional set represents the new ideas of modernity, hygiene and order in urban planning. It is added a Zone of Protection, qualified for its high environmental, architectural and Cultural, ranging from the end of Prado Promenade to the area known as La Punta.

Its elegant and neoclassical layout, in the shape of a chessboard is an outstanding example of the Cuban and Caribbean urbanism of the nineteenth century which together with the monumental richness of its buildings, complexes and public spaces, define and distinguish it. The city is an unequaled set of values closely related to the sea, true protagonist of its wealth and physical uniqueness. This strong relationship between the city and the marine environment makes Cienfuegos, and especially its Historical Center, a unique asset for its urban architectural, landscape, environmental, natural and commercial values in the country and in the Caribbean and Latin American areas. We invite you to find out.
PRADO

Cienfuegos Yacht Club

37 Street between 8th and 12th avenue

The Cienfuegos Yacht Club is one of the most beautiful eclectic buildings of the city. Since 1920, the year of its inauguration, it has witnessed the nautical and marine life of the territory.

The 18th of August in 1918 the Act of its foundation was signed on the initiative of a group of cienfuegos people, lovers of the nautical sports. The building has three levels and is topped by a dome and four towers, two of them are domes and two, viewpoints. Its characteristic combination of green and white alludes to the sport colors of Cienfuegos.

It has two restaurants whose specialty is seafood. El Marinero restaurant, located on the ground floor, where you can taste the most varied dishes of this gastronomy, among which stand out the Cienfuegos Paella and fish fillet. Open every day from 12 m to 3:00 p.m. And the Cienfuegos Restaurant-Café, on the second floor, from where you can admire the calm waters of the Jagua Bay and breathe the fresh air of the sea.

The specialty of the house is the Comodore filet mignon with mushroom sauce, shrimp and garnished with vegetables. We suggest a red wine to accompany it, for a perfect pairing. Dinners, from 6:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m.
THE SQUARE OF SCULPTURES

37st . Corner 10

It is a significant achievement in the cultural and panoramic view of the city. These sculptures were made by 17 artists of different generations and formal codes, coming from all over Cuba. The materials used here were basically stone, granite, concrete, steel, metal wasted pieces and reinforced concrete.

PALACIO DE VALLE

Located in Street 37 and 0 Avenue. The building is an emblematic site in Cienfuegos. It was built in two different stages: It started in 1895 by the Spanish Celestino Cazes. It was a great and beautiful house. In 1917 the house was transformed in what today is the representation of eclecticism in the city. It was designed by Pablo D. Carbonell, an outstanding local architect and an Italian architect directed its construction. Some artisans from different countries were charge of its construction. All materials were imported from Spain, Italy and United States; for instance: marble, bronze, crystal and ceramic. Precious Cuban woods were used too.

The building has three levels ending in three towers with Roman Gothic Style, a second Indian Style and a third one with Minaret Arabic Style. They are interpreted as: love, religion and power symbols. The building is interrelated to the bay and the Jagua Hotel. It was declared local monument in 1990. Nowadays it has the most famous restaurant in the city. The main dishes are based on seafood. There is another restaurant in the basement where you can find a variety food. It is also a big cava where you can find the most preserved wine in Cienfuegos. It opens every day.
LA PUNTA

In 2000 the area known as La Punta in Punta Gorda, was proclaimed a National Monument. It is located at the south end of the city and the indians called it: Tureira, for them “bright, shining or beautiful thing” to that piece of land that since the second half of the nineteenth century becomes a summer resort, prestigious families of the time also resided there. With a unique road access, by the physical form of the territory, it is characterized and emphasizes by the formal typology of the buildings, of wide American, Caribbean influence and by the Cuban vernacular seal of its constructions, of one and two levels, in wood.

Long ago there was here a cafeteria called “El Naranjito” (1921) specialized in natural juices. Nowadays it is a cheap restaurant located at the city historical core, right in front of “La Union” Hotel. The specialties are pizza and lasagnas. It opens 24/7 from 12:00 pm to 3:00 pm and from 6:30 pm until 10:00 pm.
José Martí Square and Surrounding Areas

On April 22nd 1819, Don Luis De Clouet and a group of French descendants founded the village of Fernandina de Jagua. As a starting point, they chose a Jagua tree located in the middle of the Savanna. Now it can be seen a Rosette built at this exact place. Before receiving the name of “José Martí” square in 1905. It was called by different names such as: Plaza de Armas, de Ramirez, de Recreo, de la Independence. Here can be appreciated the urban and architectural concept that characterize the atmosphere of Cienfuegos, so the neoclassical and eclecticism reveals the status of the previous generation. It is the largest square in the country, having two hectares (which doubles what was established by the aborigine’s laws. The square also played an important role in the popular uprising on September 5, 1957. In the surrounding of the square some buildings were built representing culture, administration and religion.

The Worker’s Arch.

It is one of a kind monument in Cuba. It was erected voluntarily by the worker’s of Cienfuegos. The initiative came up from the revolutionary club lead by Rita Suarez del Villar “La Cubanita”, during the festivities for the advent of the new unborn republic that was frustrated on May 20th, 1902. The worker began to build it on May 1st and it was finished two weeks later. At the opening ceremony there were flags hoisted on top of the arch, the Cuban flag, Cienfuegos “flag and a red flag which honored the workers with three number eight stamped on it that symbolized the three worker’s demands at that time, that is: eight working hours, eight resting hours and the rest for cultural learning.

San Lorenzo and Santo Tomás School.

56 Avenue, on the corner of 29

It was built in 1927, two schools mixed together "San Lorenzo and Santo Tomás”, and they taught handicraft and commerce to the poor children of the city. It’s architecture is quite relevant and it has been the seat of some political, historical, social and cultural events, such as: The popular uprising of September 5 in 1957. Today is a junior high school called “September 5”.
TOMAS TERRY THEATER

One of the best stages ever built in the XIX Cuban Century. It was finished in 1889 and it opened in February 1890. Many national and international artists and bands have performed here. It is noticeable some architectural features for instance the paintings on the inside walls and ceilings, the sculpture on behalf of Mr. Tomas Terry and the venetian mosaics on the façade. Shows and Events follow the schedule.

PALACIO FERRER

25 Street on the corner of 54 Avenue

This a relevant example of eclecticism. Back in 1900 on this same corner there was a two story house built by José Lombard Gómez, his family sold the property in 1915 to a Catalan named José Ferrer Sires, the one who transformed the place from neoclassical to superior eclecticism, from 1917-1918 it became a subsidiary Galician center of Havana in Cienfuegos. In 1931 the Cacicedo family bought the palace and lived here until the 70’s. Nowadays is the House of Culture.
MAROYA ART GALLERY
54th avenue. Between 25 and 27

It is the former “Díaz de Tuesta´s village which preserves the original colonial structure of the houses of the epoch, with the same walls, roof and windows. Nowadays it is the seat of the exhibition and trading of the local work of arts. It exhibits a variety of handicrafts, paintings, also traditional and popular furniture as well as fashion shows and performances.

CASINO ESPAÑOL (CITY MUSEUM)
54th avenue. On the corner 27

The Spanish Casino was built in 1894. Many Spanish immigrants used to gather at this place to relax, get information and spread their cultural traditions. After the revolutionary triumph, it turned into a worker´s club until 90´s, when it became the provincial museum. It is exhibited an interesting collection of biscuits, the original collection of the Spanish Casino, including the table used by Acisclo Del Valle´s family which is one of a kind in Cuba, also a nice variety of Italian marble. The museum opens Tuesday through Friday from 10:00 am to 6:00 pm and Sundays from 9:00 am till 1:00 pm.

“EL PALATINO” BAR-CAFETERIA.
54th avenue. Between 25 & 27

It is one of the oldest houses in the province: It show the influence of the Trinitarian architecture of Cienfuegos. Since the early years of XX Century, It became a gastronomic Bar-Cafeteria, with a wide porch where visitors can enjoy a nice “mojito” while listening to a Cuban Son and the fascinating architecture and constant movement of people walking around José Martí square.

29st and 54 avenue

It is located where the first mass took place in 1819 by Father Antonio Loreto Sánchez. It is considered one of the oldest building in the City. Its construction began in 1833 but the first tower was finished in 1852. Eight artistic images were donated, one of them was the image of “The Immaculate Conception” which was carved in Barcelona and donated by the wealthy Domingo Sarría. The extension project design was assigned to the north American engineer “Santiago Murray” in 1863. He began the construction in (1866-1869). The church was opened on December 8, 1869, the day of “The Immaculate Conception”. The architectural order of its façade and indoor is “Doric”. Twelve chapels were fitted, six on each side. There are twelve stained-glass windows made in France, representing the twelve apostles plus the image of Jesus Crist on the front part of the building. One more detail: There are nine bells, three of them are synchronized with a French watch, so the bells toll every 15 minutes.
This road was a special gift to pedestrian, since car traffic was forbidden so people may find enough room to walk from the docks to José Martí square. It has turned into a busy street where visitors can enjoy the different handicrafts made by the local artisans as well as the Cuban life style reflected on the people of Cienfuegos. Next we invite you to know about the history of the surrounding buildings.

OTHER ATTRACTIONS

REINA CEMETERY

On 7th Street between 50th and 52nd Avenue
The General or Reina Cemetery is son of the Cuban illustration; it is born when burials in Cuba leave the churches. It was built in 1839 and its unique architecture is reminiscent of the now-defunct Cemetery of Espada, in Havana. It distinguishes itself in the national scope by the conformation of its main patio, with three rows of vertical niches. This necropolis is known about that ancient form of burial, which also reflects the artistic style achieved by then Villa de Cienfuegos. The enclosure is related to one of the most well-known legends in Cienfuegos: Sleeping Beauty. For being a testimony of great patrimonial relevance was declared National Monument in 1986.

TOMAS ACEA CEMETERY

5 de Septiembre Avenue, km 31/2
It was financed by one of the most important families of the region and in honor of one of their children was named Tomás Acea. This space was designed and executed by Pablo Donato Carbonell and Luis Felipe Ros, and was a sample of modern cemetery at the time. It was a garden necropolis that takes advantage of the undulating topography of the land to integrate the funeral grounds into the landscape. It has an elegant administrative building that combines the classic forms prevailing in the city since the nineteenth century, with the grandiloquence that impressed to them the twentieth. Due to its artistic, architectural, historical and environmental values, it was declared a National Monument in 1986.

DISTRICT NAVAL DEL SUR CAYO LOCO (MUSEO HISTÓRICO NAVAL)

On 60th Avenue and 21st Street
It was owned by several settlers. In 1865 the Spanish Navy became interested in it and decided to transfer its command, located in Trinidad, to the bay of Cienfuegos. Almost at the end of the 19th century, the Pagés family acquired it and became a center for cultural and recreational festivities. In 1899 it is claimed by the Navy again and the Coast Guard Service is located there, in 1902. The constitutional Navy was established in 1935. After being recognized as the Southern Naval District, the US Navy is in charge of its occupants’ military preparation and also of increasing its military arsenal. It was one of the main scenes of the September 5, 1957 uprising, led by sailors and civilians, to overthrow the Batista tyranny. The Naval History Museum has been in its premises since 1980. Due to its historical and military relevance, it was declared a National Monument on August 31st, 1987.
